

Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning

Artificial Intelligence is a field of computer science focused on creating systems that can perform tasks requiring human-like intelligence.

Machine Learning is a subset of Artificial Intelligence that enables systems to learn patterns from data and make predictions.